The conductor
looks out at the passengers and
sees the crowd
waiting for the train. He looks at his watch and sees the time.

The conductor steps where the songs are done and looks at his watch.

He looks the
watchman
The watchman
He, the
conductor, looks
back over the city and the rails
about thirty miles.

When it is gone from sight, the crowd comes to the front and watches a speech. The train has been waiting for some time. The crowd is large and the train is long. The crowd is waiting for the train. The train is waiting for the crowd.

We'll be the Part of the World.

He says all this and more,

But the people
in the crowd
are not waiting for the train.
The train is
the only one left
at the station.
